Sportsmans Park, St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 9.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals, turned back three successive times, and facing a complete rout in the world's series battle, rallied their forces behind Willie Sherdell today for the fourth game—and last, unless the rally of the home guards proved effective.

Sherdell not only set out to south-paw the Yankees to defeat but chase the jinx they have had on him. He has lost all three of his previous starts against the New Yorkers.

Crowd Disappointing.

Waite Hoyt, who beat Sherdell in line for the Yankees after a four-day rest, seeking his sixth world's series triumph. This would tie him with Chief Bender, famous old pitcher of the Athletics, for the greatest number of series victories by any hurler. The resumption of the series after a day's postponement, due to rain, seemed to have cooled some of the fans' ardor, although it was hot enough under a broiling sun for those who sat in the bleachers in shirt sleeves.

There were vacant patches in the bleachers and stands that had been packed to the limit Sunday. Estimates placed the crowd at not more than 35,000 at the start.

First Inning

Yanks—Smith smothered Paschal's foul behind the plate. Koenig singled into left. Ruth hit into a double play, Bottomley to Maranville. No runs, one hit, no errors, none left.

Cards—Orsatti took a called third strike. High got a two bagger when Ruth lost his fly in the sun. Frisch swung at a third strike. Bottomley got a base on balls. Hoyt threw Fafey out. No runs, one hit, no errors, two left.

Second Inning

Yanks—Gehrig got a base on balls. Meusel swung at a third strike. Lazzeri sent a high fly to Maranville. Frisch took Dugan's towering fly. No runs, no hits, no errors, one left.

Cards—Lazzeri threw out Gehrig. Smith singled over second. Smith went out stealing. Bengough to Koenig. Maranville got a double into right. Sherdell grounded out to Gehrig. No runs, two hits, no errors, one left.

Third Inning

Yanks—Bengough singled to left. Hoyt sacrificed to Smith to Bottomley. High threw out Paschal. Bengough going to third. Frisch tossed out. Koenig. No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

Cards—Orsatti got a Texas Leaguer into center for two bases. High bunted safely. Orsatti going to third. Orsatti scored on Frisch's sacrifice fly to Paschal. Bottomley fouled out to Bengough. Fafey walked. Dugan moving to second. Harper swung weakly at a third strike. One run, two hits, no errors, two left.

Fourth Inning

Yanks—Ruth got a home run into the street back of the right field stands. Gehrig got his second base on balls. Meusel sent a long fly to Orsatti. Lazzeri singled sharply into left, his first hit of the series. Gehrig halted at second. Dugan lined out to Orsatti. Fafey got Bengough's short fly. One run, two hits, no errors, two left.

Cards—Smith singled to right. Maranville forced Smith Lazzeri to Koenig, who threw wildly into the stands. Maranville going to second. Sherdell fled out to Paschal. Maranville scored when Hoyt threw wildly to center field trying to catch him at second. Orsatti struck out. One run, not hit, two errors, none left.

Today is 144th Anniversary Birth of Father Jno. Dixon

Today is the 144th anniversary of Father John Dixon, founder of this city, who was born in Rye, N. Y., Oct. 9, 1784. In 1804 he established himself in the tailoring business in New York City, which he conducted until 1820, when he came to Illinois and settled at Springfield, where he erected the third house in that city. At the expiration of four years he moved to Peoria, where he was elected County Clerk, Justice of the Peace, etc., remaining there five years.

The following year, 1829, he spent in Bureau county and on April 11, 1830 he arrived at the ferry on Rock River at this place. He purchased the ferry, which for years was known as "Dixon Ferry," but later the word "ferry" was dropped and the community became "Dixon." In 1808 he married Rebecca Sherwood, a native of New York, and to them twelve children were born, four of whom grew to maturity. Father Dixon died July 6, 1876, his wife having preceded him in death in February, 1847. Father Dixon was of the Republican political faith and was a member of the Baptist church.

Shader Awaits Death on Gallows Tomorrow

Joliet, Ill., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Resigned to his fate, Charles Shader sat calmly in his cell today ready to meet death at dawn tomorrow as his penalty for the slaying of Deputy Warden Peter Klein during an escape from prison two years ago.

County authorities, who will perform the execution in the Joliet county jail yard, were making their preparations quietly and had not announced the hour set for the hanging.

Shader, one of the seven convicts participating in the prison escape, will be the fourth to hang for the warden's murder. Another of the prisoners was shot to death during a later escape from the county jail and the two others are at liberty.

GRAF ZEPPELIN WON'T START FOR U. S. TOMORROW

Thousands to See Big Dirigible Off on Ocean Flight

BULLETIN

Friedrichshafen, Germany, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Announcement was made late today that the departure of the dirigible Graf Zeppelin for the United States, scheduled for tomorrow, had been postponed because of adverse weather prospects.

Friedrichshafen, Germany, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Thousands of persons gathered here today in the hope of seeing Graf Zeppelin, German dirigible, start tomorrow on its trans Atlantic voyage to Lakehurst, N. J., with passengers and mail. Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the airship, awaited the reports of weather prospects before he would announce the start time or his route.

Each of the passengers has been insured for 200,000 marks ($48,000) in case of death and the airship has also been insured.

Dr. Eckener said that the round trip to the United States would cost 400,000 marks ($96,000) which would cover allowances for depreciation, repairs and insurance. Newspaper interests that have been given the right to file dispatches from the airship will furnish most of the revenue for the trip. A chain of American newspapers will pay 281,000 marks ($67,440) and two German publications will pay 65,000 marks ($15,600) between them. Four private passengers were charged 50,000 marks ($12,000). The other 4,000 marks needed to make up the total cost will come from the German postal department to pay for carrying mail.

The builders of Graf Zeppelin hope to sell her but do not think they will have a chance of doing so in America, since the United States government has just announced a decision to have the Goodyear Zeppelin Corporation build two giant rigid dirigibles.

The new American ships will be double the size of Graf Zeppelin, which itself is half again as large as the biggest United States dirigible, the Los Angeles. The new airships will cost four times as much as Graf Zeppelin which cost 4,000,000 marks ($960,000).

Emmerson Gets Kick Out of New Charge

Chicago, Oct. 9.—(AP)—"A joke," was Louis L. Emmerson's characterization of a Democratic attack on his eligibility as Republican nominee for Governor today.

"I am laughing about it," he said. "I have the battle won by 500,000 or more. After a campaign of vilification and falsehood, which has not resulted in any accession of votes, my opponents spring this ludicrous statement."

State Democratic headquarters yesterday sent out a brief prepared by 28 Chicago lawyers, asserting that Mr. Emmerson was not eligible to run for governor while holding the position of Secretary of State.

LINEMAN FOR I. N. U. MET DEATH NEAR BELVIDERE

Thomas Cole Electrocuted While Rolling Up Spool of Wire

BULLETIN

Thomas Cole, groundman for the Illinois Northern Utilities company, was electrocuted at Belvidere Sunday when a "spool" of wire that he was winding came in contact with a ground wire on a high voltage line carrying power to the Bel Mar Country club.

Fellow workmen saw Cole receive the shock, but they were unable to come to his assistance. A fisherman, wearing rubber boots, was called from the river nearby and pried the body loose from the wires.

Fellow employees are unable to account for the accident.

Work "Reported Finished." Cole with his crew was engaged in rewinding old wire that was being removed from the 3,300-volt line that extends through the area supplying McHenry county towns with power.

There is a sub line to the Bel Mar club which is supposed to carry 2,300. Power was shut off on the main line while the men were at work and also on the branch. It was after all linemen had reported the work completed that the current was turned on to supply the county club area.

It is believed the wire that Cole was rolling up found some connection with this current. The shock according to indications, struck him in the left arm. His body stood upright until released by the fisherman.

Doctor Directs Resuscitation. Fellow workmen, trained in resuscitation methods, worked for four hours under the direction of a physician before the victim was pronounced dead.

Robbers Get $8,000 in Two Chicago Jobs

Chicago, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Four robbers held up fifteen employees of the Sidney Warner Dairy Company today and escaped with $8,000. An hour before four men, believed to be the same robbers, held up a fur shop and made away with furs valued at $5,000.

MASSACRE OF 200,000 CHINESE BY MOSLEMS REPORTED TO U. S. MISSION

New York, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, chairman of the China famine relief organization in New York City, received information today of the reported massacre of about 200,000 persons by fanatic Moslems in Kansu Province, China.

From reports already in from the country districts, "the letter to Dr. Cadman continued, "The known massacred exceed two hundred thousand. A stream of reports coming in to the committee tell of villages pillaged and burned and those inhabitants who escaped with their lives being without food or clothing."

GOVERNOR LAST HOPE FOR LIFE OF W. HICKMAN

Justices of Supreme Court Refuse Any Relief Action

Washington, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Efforts to obtain from a justice of the Supreme Court an appeal for William Edward Hickman, at Los Angeles under sentence of death for the murder of Marian Parker, were abandoned here today after counsel for Hickman had vainly urged Justices Butler and Holmes to permit the case to be brought up.

Efforts will be made to obtain a commutation of sentence from the Governor of California as the last hope of saving the life of Hickman, whose execution date is October 19. Jerome Walsh of Kansas City, and his associate, Richard H. Cantillon of Los Angeles, Hickman's counsel, will leave Washington this afternoon, bearing a petition to the governor of California asking for a hearing.

"I feel that my associate and myself have done all possible for our client and we have exhausted every possible legal remedy," said Walsh. "We will now urge the Governor to commute the sentence."

Walsh yesterday interviewed Justices Van Devanter, Brandeis and Sutherland urging each to grant him an appeal, insisting that Hickman had not received a fair trial.

Today he and his associate called upon Justice Butler and found him as unwilling as the other justices to bring up the case.

State's Attorney is Asked to Investigate Prisoner in County Jail Eats With Tube

George Klunk of Chicago, who spent a few hours in the county jail yesterday and was released in the afternoon surprised fellow prisoners by eating and drinking with a funnel instead of a knife, fork and spoon. Klunk was one of four young men from Chicago who were brought to the county jail following a crash on the Lincoln Highway east of Franklin Grove Monday morning. He asked for a physician as soon as he reached the county jail and his request was granted.

When the physician arrived and began to examine the patient, he, too, was as much surprised as the prisoners. When he prepared medicine for Klunk, the latter opened his shirt, pulled out a small rubber tube, reached in his pocket for a small aluminum funnel, which he placed in the end of the tube and poured the medicine into it. He asked for soup for dinner and this was served him, but instead of consuming it with a spoon, he used the tube and funnel. Klunk explained that acids had burned his throat to such an extent that the tube had to be used to get food into his stomach. He has attended clinics in many parts of the country where specialists have examined him, and is apparently very strong and healthy and has no fault to find with his condition.

FOUR GIANT PLANES WILL FLY TO CITY

Chas. Walgreen's Sign for Dixon Airport to Be Dedicated

Charles Walgreen's dual-motored Sikorsky plane, amphibian, will arrive at Dixon's air port on the Crawford farm, east of the city, at 11 o'clock next Saturday morning. Accompanying the Walgreen plane will be the Gray Goose, commercial monoplane and a commercial monoplane from Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Hundreds of Boy Scouts will be on the field to keep back the thousands who will gather on the field to witness the coming of the planes.

Soon after the landings of the planes the distinguished guests from Chicago and Cedar Rapids will be taken to the Elks Club where they will be entertained at a banquet given by the Chamber of Commerce. There will be several short speeches welcoming Mr. Walgreen. These speeches will be delivered by local men. Mr. Walgreen will respond.

Banquet at Noon. Tickets for the banquet are on sale, the price will be $1.00 a plate. Tickets will be on sale at the office of the Chamber of Commerce and all reservations must be made by Thursday night. The banquet hour is between 11:30 and 12:30 o'clock, beginning promptly at the hour set. Dixon people should patronize this banquet for it means a great deal to Dixon. It will be a compliment to Mr. Walgreen for his willingness to "put Dixon on the map." He is deeply interested in Dixon and Dixon people, and Dixon people should show their gratitude. It is expected that thousands of people will visit Dixon next Saturday.

There will be a demonstration of water landings and take-off in Rock River from 12:30 to 2:30 o'clock. This demonstration will be worth seeing and everyone should be a witness to the event.

Off Assembly Park. The demonstration will be made on Rock River at Assembly Park and people will occupy the bank of the river at the Assembly beach. Committees are now at work in an effort to make the demonstration a big success. All the school children of Dixon will witness the demonstration. School children from the country adjacent to Dixon will also be present. School children who desire to see the plane light on the Crawford field should be on the field early. The field will be properly patrolled by Sheriff Ward Miller and the Boy Scouts will be on hand.

The committee in charge has arranged to have the Boys' Band of the Y. M. C. A. play for the occasion.

JOS. SNADER WAS FATALY HURT MONDAY

Disregarded Warning of Flagman at Seventh Street Crossing

Joseph M. Snader, for several years engaged in the produce and commission business in Dixon, died at the Dixon public hospital at 6:40 last evening as the result of injuries sustained when he was struck by the Illinois Central switch train at the Seventh street crossing about half an hour previously. A number of persons who were at the crossing witnessed the accident in which the victim sustained injuries which proved fatal. An inquest was conducted over the remains by Coroner Frank M. Banker at the Preston mortuary this morning at 10 o'clock.

Several witnesses were examined and the testimony showed that Mr. Snader drove directly in the pathway of the train, pulling out and passing two other automobiles which had been stopped by Switchman Joseph McIntyre. Mr. McIntyre, according to his testimony before the coroner's jury, had been stationed at the crossing for about ten minutes while the switching crew were engaged in switching cars on the "Y" transfer track.

Two autos, east bound, had been halted and were waiting to pass when Mr. Snader drove up from the west, a Ford roadster which bore no headlights. Swinging out of the line of traffic, he drove directly in the pathway of the switch train, which at that time was pushing a string of eight cars on the transfer siding. An empty coal gondola struck the automobile and rolled it a short distance before the train was stopped. At the time of the accident the train was travelling at a speed not to exceed five miles an hour, according to the testimony.

Fred C. Beggs, who was at the crossing at the time of the accident, told the coroner's jury that Mr. Snader apparently realized his danger after driving upon the track in the pathway of the train, as he attempted to turn the car south away from the train and also grabbed the door as if making an effort to jump from the machine.

One Man Escaped. Mr. Beggs stated that another car had crossed the tracks just ahead of the Snader car and narrowly missed being struck, the driver paying no attention to the stop signal of the members on duty at the crossing. Members of the train crew who testified before the inquest were: Eugene A. Biggart, engineer; Alfred P. Tice, fireman; Charles Ruggles, switching foreman; Joseph McIntyre, and William Woods, switchman. Jacob Busker, engine tender and Fred C. Beggs, driver, who attended the victim of the accident at the scene of the accident and at the hospital, also testified.

Mr. Snader moved from Ashton to Dixon last Saturday and was employed at the Black Hawk Produce Company's plant on West Seventh street. He left the plant shortly after 6 o'clock and was driving east on Seventh street. When the train struck the roadster, the driver was thrown out and the car was rolled a short distance and was a mass of twisted wreckage.

Mr. Snader was born in Harrisburg, Pa., December 4, 1872 and had resided in this vicinity for a number of years. He is survived by his wife and four sons, Harry, Wayne, Lyle and Carroll, all of this city. Funeral services will be conducted from the Preston chapel Thursday afternoon at 1:30 after which the remains will be taken to Walnut for interment.

PERT OCTOBER—
Oh, October is a gay lass!
She flaunts a wicked bonnet,
Of golden-rod and yellow grass,
A red bird's wing upon it.

October's cloak is crisply brown,
Her cheek is summer's ember;
Arch her look, with pout or frown,
To tease gray old November.

Women Thinly Clad
Healthier Than Men

Springfield, Ill. — (AP) — Scanty skirts and shifts with which women choose to meet wintry blasts are healthier, if not warmer than the "heavies" affected by the male of the species.

This is the dictum of Dr. Isaac D. Rawlings, state health director, in a statement issued today on the comparative merits of winter style in men and women's clothing.

Clothing ought to provide protection against chilling the body while the individual is outside and to prevent heat stasis, excessive perspiration, malfunction of the skin and too much relative humidity in the air spaces between body and garment while the individual is inside heated buildings. These requirements are met far more satisfactorily by the modern woman's dress than by that of man, he said.

"The weight of a woman's cold weather clothing is about one-tenth of what the text books on hygiene figured on twenty years ago," said Dr. Rawlings, "while that of man remained about the same. Women have abandoned heavy under-garments for the more sensible plan of protecting themselves against exposure to cold by wearing furs, woolen overgarments and coats that may be laid aside easily within doors.

"Men on the other hand, cling to heavy undergarments which not only cause an unfavorable difference in the amount of heat radiated and the amount of perspiration but influence the functions of the skin.

"One important factor in the difficulty with winter garments of men is that they shut out light rays from the body so that the face and hands make up the whole areas of the body exposed to these rays. This is especially true of garments that are lined. The light, unlined garments of women admit light rays freely. These facts have been demonstrated in Germany where experiments were carried out by placing paper, specially sensitized to light, between the materials to be examined and the body and exposing the individual to natural or artificial sunlight.

BY SISTER MARY
BREAKFAST—Apple sauce, cereal, cream, crisp bacon, bran muffins, milk, coffee.
LUNCHEON—Stuffed onions, tomato and banana salad, toasted muffins, chocolate milk shake, vanilla cookies.
DINNER—Boiled ham, scalloped potatoes, chard with lemon sauce, cucumber and lettuce salad with French dressing, blackberry short-cake, milk, coffee.

Summer is the ideal time to vary the breakfast cereal with the ready-to-serve varieties. Try using a prepared cereal when muffins rather than toast are wanted for breakfast.

Stuffed Onions
Four large onions, 1-2 cup cold chopped meat, 1-2 cup soft stale bread crumbs, 1-2 cup milk, 1-2 teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon butter. Peel onions and remove a thin slice from top of each. Parboil until almost done. Drain and remove centers, making four little cups. Chop onion that was scooped out and combine with crumbs, meat, milk and seasoning. Fill onion cups with this mixture, plump up well above top. Cover with fine dry crumbs and bake in a moderate oven until very tender. The onions can be baked and served in individual baking cups if convenient.

Vows Plighted in Chicago on Sunday

An early October wedding was solemnized at 9 o'clock nuptial mass in Our Lady of Sorrows Church of Chicago Saturday morning, when Miss Helen Flemming and Floyd Hutten of Sterling, plighted their marriage vows. They were attended at the ceremony by Miss Marion Plouff of Marinette, Wis., and Leo Hutten of Sterling, the latter being a brother of the groom.

The WOMAN'S DAY by ALFRED SUGAR

A luncheon date with Daphne means infinitely more than an apple green enameled table for two in a window at The Jade Tea Room with chicken salad in tomato aspic, iced coffee, and red raspberry parfait. It means ideas—many of 'em—for the "colony"—not that Daphne ever knows what happens to what she describes as her "ravings"—heavens, no!

Daphne fairly teemed today. It was my first glimpse of her in two months for Daphne had just returned from a Paris-London-Geneva "mat." The whys and wherefores of said "mat" had featured the luncheon dates for several weeks preceding, with Daphne playing the game of should I-or-shouldn't-I. It meant borrowing money, shipping her mother to a brothel, sub-letting her apartment.

But today Daphne was radiant. "It was worth every cent I'm in debt," she enthused. "It does something to you—I don't know what. I'll never be the same again. It isn't just the things you do and see—not facts—it's what they do to you. It gives you a background, a sense of having asserted yourself, gotten out of the rut. Gee, I'd certainly advise any girl who has worked more than five years to cut loose even on borrowed money. She'll find a way of paying it back."

Then Daphne launched into the story of her life. "I'm hunting a room somewhere," she said. "I thought I'd stay at brother's until fall, when the apartment would be free again. But I forgot how impossible it is to be a free human being in someone else's home. I was out to dinner last night and got out to the house about 12:30. There was quite an atmosphere at breakfast."

"Mother was still aggrieved because I'd gone out to dinner at all. We had all dined out together the night before, which had been my first reunion with the family, and I had no conscience at all about announcing that I was dining out the next night. But mother looked mournful and said, 'but, Daphne, we were to have our first dinner at home all together tonight.'"

"Les, I know I'm talking silly," said Daphne. "But mother has so riled me all her life with her emphasis on sentimental goings-on that mean nothing; she tries to clamp the family to her in that way, and the harder she clamps the more we resent it."

"Well, I'm hoping—life's too short for family fussing!"
Daphne is only one of hundreds of girls who will stand no family complications these days for the sake of family compensations. I wonder if someday the compensations which they so blithely passed up won't seem much bigger and more important than the complexities which they attempted to dodge.

Double Wedding Was Solemnized

A double wedding was solemnized in Shannon, Ill., Saturday afternoon, the contracting parties being Miss Hazel Little of Rock Falls and Harry Breiding of Sterling, and Miss Gladys Buckingham and Carroll Cunningham, both of Sterling. Rev. A. D. Shaffer, a former pastor at Sterling, performed the marriage ceremony at two o'clock in the parsonage to the Shannon Trinity Evangelical church.

The two brides appeared very attractive and charming in their beautiful costumes with hats and accessories to match. Miss Little wore a gown of tan georgette crepe and Miss Buckingham was attired in blue crepe de chine.

In the evening the newlyweds returned to Sterling, where they will make their homes. Mr. and Mrs. Breiding are residing at 709 Third avenue and Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham at 207 Ninth avenue. All four of the young people are popular and highly respected in this community, with hosts of friends who are waiting to extend best wishes for their future happiness. Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham were guests of honor at a wedding dinner given Sunday for them at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Buckingham.

Working Girls Have Changed Lunch Habit

Chicago, Oct. 9 (AP)—Stenographers and other working girls have changed the lunch habits of a nation. Charles H. Snow of Bloomington, president of the Illinois Association of Ice Cream Manufacturers, told the annual convention today.

The amount of ice cream consumed in the last eight years has more than doubled, he said, and added that the working girls did it. The working girl scouted around for some cheap, satisfying lunch and hit upon ice cream, he said, and this marked the beginning of the soda fountain lunch with ice cream and malted milk playing the principal role.

UNITY GUILD TO MEET THURSDAY AFTERNOON—
The members of Unity Guild will meet Thursday afternoon with Miss Carrie Swartz, 826 North Galena avenue. All members are urged to be present.

Bridge Made Easy

DECLARER'S STRATEGY—2
Shuffling should be resorted to whenever necessary, an illustration thereof being as follows:
Dummy—spades 8 7; hearts A 5 4 3; diamonds 9 7 6 3; clubs A Q 10. East—
Declarer—spades A K Q 6 5; hearts 9 7; diamonds A Q 5 4; clubs 6 5.
West—Leads clubs K.

At trump play, upon the dummy's being exposed, the declarer counts his losers. He notices that game may be made provided he can rid himself of the losing heart trick. This may be accomplished by finessing the 10 of clubs, returning to his own hand and finessing the Queen of clubs on the next round and then shuffling the losing heart on the Ace of clubs. If this shuff were not required the first finesse in the club suit would be through the Queen of clubs and not the 10 of clubs.

Deems-Wright Wedding Monday

On Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock, Elyse Wright and Lora Deems of Dixon were united in marriage at the Baptist parsonage by the Rev. Walter W. Marshall. The bride was charmingly attired in blue satin and wore a black velvet hat. They were unattended. The beautiful ring ceremony was used. They are taking up their home in Dixon where they will be glad to welcome their friends. The bridegroom is employed in the Plow Works.

YOUR CHILDREN—

By Olive Roberts Barton
I think every mother should have a clinical thermometer and learn how to use it.

A clinical thermometer costs about a dollar and a half or two dollars at drug stores. However it is very easily broken and should be carefully handled.

After being used it should be washed in an antiseptic solution such as boric acid, strong salt water or alcohol, dried on a clean towel, and put in a safe place, replaced in its case and kept where it can be found easily and quickly when needed. Also it should be kept out of reach of the children.

All this sounds rather ominous for such an innocent and helpful little instrument. But care is necessary for several reasons.

The disease germs of one member of the family can be transmitted to others if the thermometer is taken out of the sick person's mouth and put into the mouth of another without the necessary cleansing.

If children are allowed to play with the thermometer they are likely to break the thin glass in their mouths. Not only would that be dangerous, but the mercury would be none too good for them.

In many ways a clinical thermometer is like any other thermometer except that the little thread-like line of mercury in the tube, contrary to the adage that what goes up must come down—doesn't! It will go up itself to the figure registering the patient's temperature, but it will not go down until you shake it down.

The normal temperature of a well person is ninety-eight and three-fifths. It is plainly marked on the thermometer with a tiny arrow.

When the thermometer is put into the mouth of a well child under the tongue, lips closed, and allowed to remain for one minute, the mercury should stand just right at that mark. A baby's temperature should be taken in the groin.

Before using, it should be seen that the mercury is shaken down to a point below normal or no result will be obtained.

If the mercury goes up above ninety-eight and three-fifths degrees, the patient is feverish. Children often develop sudden alarming rises in temperature from simple causes, but on the other hand it may not be so simple. A temperature is nature's warning of trouble.

POINTERS FOR PARENTS

JEALOUSY

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne
The jealous man distrusts his hold on the affections of his family, envies those who make more money than he and feels, though he won't admit it, that he can't be much good himself.

There probably are many causes that contribute to the making of such an unlovable and unhappy individual, but perhaps the most common goes back to that morning when the unexpected arrival of a baby brother was announced to him as if it were cause for joy. On that day he learned that he no longer completely possessed his mother. A small uninteresting bundle had supplanted him.

He could not resign himself to share what had been altogether his. He resented the baby in the curve of his mother's arm. She, who used to be his to his stories and fuss over his bumps, was now too busy to do either. He was left to get along by himself. He wondered why his mother seemed to love the newcomer so much more than she loved him. He felt that he must lack some quality which the baby possessed.

Throughout his life he could not escape variations of this theme of jealousy. He could never again feel secure in the love of anyone. He always found himself desiring what someone else possessed, just as in the forgotten past he had desired the baby brother's place beside his mother. Unconsciously he felt that in some mysterious way all this misery was inherent in some defect in his own personality, for he never discovered any other explanation for that first reversal in his fortunes.

There are few sources of lifelong unhappiness that can be prevented more easily than this one. If mothers will take pains to prepare the child for the arrival of the baby, telling him how tiny and helpless it will be, and how he must help take care of it, he will feel a protectiveness that will make him think of the new baby as "our baby." If she will give him sufficient attention so that he will not feel that he has lost ground in his mother's love, he will more readily learn to share the good things of life. He will not think that exclusive possession of things or of people is an indispensable condition of happiness.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS—WATERMELON CUBES

A delicious dessert is made by filling the hold of half cantaloupes with tiny cubes of watermelon. Chill thoroughly and serve.

STUFFED PEPPERS

Green peppers, stuffed with chopped liver, rice and onions, make a delicious and filling luncheon or supper dish for hot days.

TOMATO JUICE

When oranges get expensive, a good substitute for the breakfast drink is strained tomato juice, chilled. Serve in small glasses.

KITCHEN STOOL

If you have a little tot who "helps" you work, get a stool for her to stand on while she watches mother make pies or jelly.

BIRD CAGES

Summer is hard on canaries and other birds. Keep their cages immaculate and be sure to have fresh water and a little green put in every day.

CRANBERRY ICE

For a colorful dessert serve cranberry ice. Use stewed cranberries just as you would any other fruit. It is also good served with duck or any wild fowl.

PRETTY GARNISH

Garnish broiled young chicken with a very thin slice of pineapple, topped by a very thin slice of whole orange. It is colorful and tempting.

WASHING SHIELDS

Lay shields flat on the washbowl and use the nail brush, with suds, to wash them clean. Rinse in clear water and then in water with a little ammonia. Let dry without wringing.

DRESS CLOSETS

Why not dress your closets up for summer? Colorful hangers and shoe trees and pretty chintz or gingham

A DOG'S MEMORY.

Two years ago an Irish setter pup, then about a year old, was stolen from his home in Dixon. The owner advertised and searched and the family mourned, for the dog, as dogs will do, had become loved by all the household.

The trail of the thieves led southward and was followed for a ways and then lost, but the owner of the setter never gave up hope that some day he would find him and felt certain, for some reason that the dog was alive and would eventually be returned.

The other day the owner drove to a little southern Illinois town, making a trip of 700 miles, and returned with his dog.

The remarkable feature of this story of a dog's that after an absence of two years and after knowing many masters, the setter instantly knew the man who had raised him. He gave every sign of joy at seeing him and without hesitation obeyed the old commands and performed the tricks taught him in puppyhood.

Does a dog have brains? We'll say he has brains and can use them. He has the emotions of love and joy and sadness and loneliness, and he certainly has a memory.

FEEDING GERMANY.

It is the peculiar fate of those whose names have been connected with great enterprises that the personality of the man often is lost in the glory of the achievement. Many Americans think of Herbert Hoover as the head of the Belgian Relief, the United States Food Administration, or the Russian Relief. They see him as an eminent executive, a noted administrator, rather than as an individual or a personality.

Those who have worked with Mr. Hoover know that along with his tremendous capacity for handling big affairs, he is intensely human. To what extent this human quality permeates his administrative work is indicated by Cleveland A. Newton, former Member of Congress from Missouri, in his account of efforts to get food to the starving women and children of Germany and Central Europe following the Armistice. The article by Mr. Newton has just been reproduced by the Republican National Committee.

When all efforts of Congressmen Newton and Hamilton Fish of New York, to obtain an appropriation for purchasing surplus foodstuffs to feed famine-stricken Central Europe had failed, Hoover appeared before the House Committee with his famous declaration: "We were never at war with women and children anywhere," and the tide was turned.

When Clemenceau was intimating it would be better for France if 20,000,000 Germans starved, Hoover was bombarding the Allied Supreme Council with demands that the blockade be lifted on Scandinavian countries, with the right of re-export into Germany. These efforts failing, he pleaded with President Wilson to bring pressure upon the allies.

Time after time Hoover appealed to President Wilson to bring pressure of world opinion upon the Allies.

"The situation in Germany today is to a large degree one of complete abandonment of hope," he wrote. "The people are in a state of moral collapse, and there is no resurrection from this except through the restoration of the normal processes of economic life and hope."

When the blockade finally was lifted, Hoover was able to throw into Germany $250,000,000 worth of food, for which Germany paid. In addition Hoover's relief administration and the Quakers furnished food for Germany. From other funds, large sums were allotted for the relief of Austrian and Polish children, while some $8,000,000 was transferred to individual friends of nationals in America.

Criticized both at home and abroad for his humanitarian action, Hoover issued his famous statement, "Why We Are Feeding Germany." Said he:

"From the point of view of my Western upbringing, I would say at once, because we do not kick a man in the stomach after he is down.

"From the point of view of a governor, I would say it is because famine breeds anarchy, anarchy is infectious, and the infection of such a cesspool will jeopardize France and Great Britain, and will yet spread to the United States.

"From the point of view of a humanitarian, I would say that we have not been fighting with women and children and we are not beginning now.

"From the point of view of a negotiator of the Armistice, I could say that we are in honor bound to fulfill the implied terms of the Armistice that Germany shall have food.

"Taking it by and large our face is forward, not backward on history. We and our children must live with these seventy millions of Germans. No matter how deeply we may feel at the present moment our vision must stretch over the next hundred years, and we must write now into history such acts as will stand creditably in the minds of our grandchildren."

Surely, here is an example of broad humanity noteworthy at any time, and approaching nobility when one considers the conditions under which it was manifested.

THE THYMITES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The little plane just skimmed along, and Scouty said, "If naught goes wrong, this ought to be as nice a trip as we have ever had. The sparrow seems to like to fly, and find his way round in the sky, but if he lets go of the plane, well that will be too bad."

And then the sparrow chirped a bit, and said, "Now don't you have a fit. I wouldn't do a trick like that to little lads like you. You're always safe and sound with me, 'cause I am strong as I can be. I'm going to keep on flying till I find a land that's new."

"Ah, that's the way to talk to us," said Scouty. "We'll make no more fuss. But sometimes it seems scary, as we sail on through the air. However, we are satisfied to hang on and enjoy this ride. If you can find a land we haven't seen, please take us there."

So, on they traveled, 'way up high toward clouds that floated in the sky.

"Oh, look, we're going to hit a cloud," cried Carpy. "I'm afraid!"

"Oh, that's all right," the sparrow said. "If you are scared, just duck your head. I know that it is safe, 'cause in a lot of clouds I've played."

And he was right. They sailed right in. The Thymites then began to grin. "The cloud is harmless," Copy cried. "This is the most fun yet. It's misty! I can hardly see, and it feels rather cold to me." Then, as they left the cloud they found their suits were slightly wet.

Just then some great big buzzards flew right near. It seemed that they would do some damage to the little plane. The startled pecking fast. "Hey, lads, don't let them peck your nose," the sparrow shouted loud. "Here goes!" It picked up speed and left the buzzards far behind at last.

(The Thymites find some food in the next story.)

As Others See It

THE SYMPATHY CANDIDATE
New York Herald-Tribune

What has become of that two-fisted, fighting governor who was to take the bunk out of politics, call issues by their first names and fight his way right up the White House steps?

We ask because we have been reading the governor's newspaper organs in this city, and we can find only pleas for sympathy. "Pity our poor candidate!" is their cry. If the governor has positive, fighting issues these supporters have forgotten what they are.

Instead they complain bitterly of unfair attacks—whispered by Dr. Straton over the radio. "The bigots are against him," they declare—omitting to mention the fact that there are also bigots for him.

The "wealthy snobs" are fighting the "Al Smiths" in another sad story—punctuated by the sound of $50,000 checks dropped into Mr. Raskob's warchest.

"And look at the miscreants who are opposing our hero," they cry. As a document in evidence is offered a picture with Tom Heflin leading the dastardly attack. (Alas for evidence! Cotton Tom has lately shown strong indications of a desire to steal into the Smith tent.)

We hope the governor does not resent these pleas. We hope he will reënt the effort to portray him as a beggar holding out a tin cup for votes and will start in to fight the real issues of the campaign. Instead of asking for sympathy, let him prove.

That American prosperity is a myth, as he asserted in his acceptance speech.

That the hard times which he thinks he sees will be cured by letting in more foreign goods and more foreign laborers.

That the equalization fee which he has finally decided to defend is not another Bryanesque, free-silver policy.

That with the aid of his strong band of dry Democrats from the South he can persuade Congress to give the nation wine and beer.

That, despite the same Democratic opposition, he can obtain a constitutional amendment.

That this change in the Constitution should fasten another system of liquor control upon the nation equally difficult to change.

When the governor has finished arguing these points he may need sympathy. But he will at least have earned it.

QUESTIONS:

Hoover Faces Them Squarely
Hoover does not talk much but when he does talk he speaks fearlessly and without equivocation. There is abundant evidence of this in his acceptance speech and other pronouncements since that time. His analysis of the farm question is admitted even by his opponents as shedding real light upon the perplexing situation for the first time. His statement of remedies was positive and feasible. His firm and fearless stand on the prohibition question which had been touched so lightly by politicians, inspired confidence and admiration for its clarity and logic. His recital of other questions that the nation will have to face in the near future assured the country that his ideas are positive and his plane of action effective. We need these qualities in a President.

News From Grid Camps of Large Schools of West

BY PAUL R. MICKELSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
Chicago, Oct. 9—(AP)—Pat Page and the towering crimson-clad Indiana eleven he has whipped together are causing nothing but worry among their ambitious Big Ten football rivals this year.

Ever since the ingenious Page played football, baseball and basketball for the University of Chicago years ago, he has been busy blasting other teams' championship hopes. At Butler, he made a great record and last year his Indiana team ruined Minnesota's title hopes by holding the Gophers to a 14 to 14 tie.

But this season, Page has what is heralded as one of the most powerful elevens in Indiana's history. And while it is not regarded as a Big Ten title contender, its rivals, Michigan, Illinois, Ohio State, Minnesota, Northwestern and Purdue, respect and fear it. Coach Zuppke of Illinois is especially apprehensive as his team meets the Hoosiers in its first Conference clash, October 20.

Page's hopeful, strong in the line and fleet in the backfield, showed their fighting instinct Saturday when they came from behind to defeat the Oklahoma Sooners, 10 to 7. Indiana has some capable kickers, especially Hughes who kicked a field goal from his 38 yard line against Oklahoma.

Michigan is Indiana's first Conference opponent. They meet at Ann Arbor Saturday.

Big Ten teams went through only light drills yesterday, but scrimmages were on today's program.

At Michigan and Illinois, several shifts have been made in the varsity lineup. Coach Tad Weiman of Michigan took four players from the second team and injected them into the varsity in an attempt to bolster his machine, while Coach Zuppke, disappointed with the east by which Bradley Tech scored its one touchdown against Illinois, swapped his players freely.

Because of the Badgers' victory over Notre Dame, Wisconsin is filled with confidence. They have a doubleheader with Cornell College of Iowa and North Dakota State Saturday, but Coach Thistlethwaite is pointing to the Purdue game, Oct. 20. Bronko Nagurski, who was expected to take Herb Joesting's place at fullback at Minnesota, has been transferred to his old tackle post by Coach Clarence Spears, who was dissatisfied with the forward wall in the Creighton game. Purdue, which invades Minnesota Saturday, is working on a smoother offense.

Saturday's games between Ohio State and Northwestern at Evanston and Chicago and Iowa at Stagg Field undoubtedly will be hard fought. All four came through Saturday's contests victorious and unbruised.

Nebraska is the 15th state in area, embracing 77,500 square miles.

Sox and Cubs Tied for City B. B. Title

Chicago, Oct. 9—(AP)—Each victorious in three games, the Cubs and White Sox were to determine the city baseball championship at Comiskey Park today.

The White Sox, who have fought an uphill battle most of the way during the traditional series, forced it into a seventh game yesterday by defeating their National League rivals, 7 to 1, for their second straight triumph.

With Grady Adkins limiting the cubs to six hits, the White Sox pounded Guy Bush, Charlie Root and Hal Carlson for 14 safeties, piling up their runs in the first three innings.

PARADE FEATURE OF LEGION MEET ON SECOND DAY

30,000 Legionnaires in Review Before General Pershing Today

San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 9—(AP)—Through flag-draped streets of this southwestern city, at whose nearby training camps and army posts many of them first heard the terse command of "Attention," more than ten years ago, 30,000 Legionnaires marched in review to the accompaniment of martial music from 100 bands.

The parade, feature and sole business of the second day's program of the tenth annual American Legion convention, was the magnet that brought attendance to its peak.

Adding to the 60,000 distant visitors estimated to be here now, hosts of south Texas residents poured into the city today to witness the events. Starting shortly before noon, marchers required more than three hours to pass one of several reviewing stands erected near Texas' shrine of patriotism, The Alamo, for General John J. Pershing, Secretary of War Dwight Davis, Field Marshal Viscount Allenby, Major General Henry T. Allen, Commander of the 90th Division on the Rhine, and other distinguished visitors.

Wounded See Parade
Two thousand wounded veterans also had been given vantage points to view the pageant of marchers. Mother, wives and sisters of the legionnaires had positions in the line of march.

The march climaxes the scores of impromptu and informal parades that have been going on almost continuously since Sunday. Impatient to get at the serious business of passing in review, detached units of fun-seeking soldiers had organized almost hourly to parade the streets, each vying with the last for bizarre marching effects.

Led by one or more of the 100 bands and drum corps available the marchers trooped through hotel lobbies and the streets without discrimination. The "Cavalry," frolicking, footsore infantrymen, who leaped tiny Mexican burros for mounts, followed in the wake of each assemblage.

Visions of going over the top in a storm of shot and shell still were fresh in the minds today of Legion members, memories of days in the trenches having been re-kindled last night at a sham battle in which infantry, tanks and field artillery depicted actual fighting in France. Flares lighted the sky as cannon, machine guns, tanks and all the implements of combat figured in the storming of a position held by enemy troops.

LABOR NEUTRAL IN ELECTION SO FAR AS LEADERS SAY

However Union Leaders are Citing Records of Candidates

By JAMES L. WILLIAMS
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

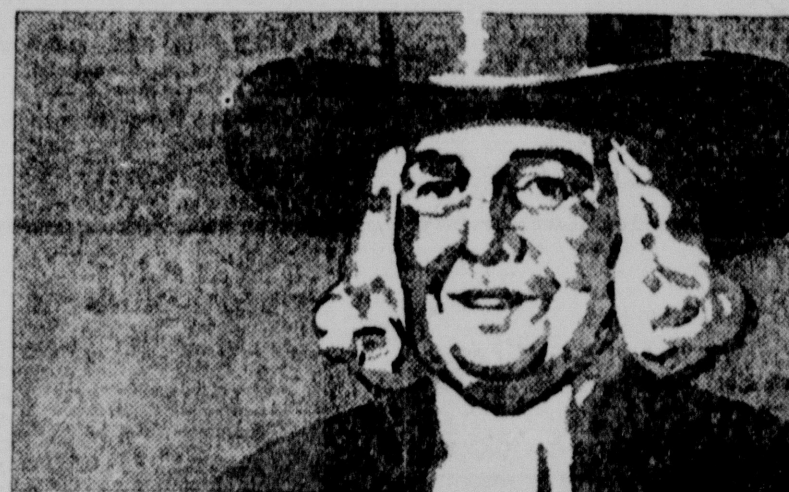

Washington, October 9—(AP)—As the presidential campaign approaches its decisive stage, political managers are concentrating on special groups of voters in their efforts to turn the flow of these important ballots towards their national tickets.

Such great national organizations as the American Federation of Labor and the railroad brotherhoods have adopted a neutral attitude, leaving their membership to decide between Herbert Hoover and Alfred E. Smith. But these organizations frankly say that they are laying the records of the candidates before their membership so that they may vote intelligently, insofar as their ballots may affect labor.

A few individual unions have endorsed the Democratic presidential candidate, while several outstanding leaders in the labor movement, such as John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, and W. N. Doak, vice president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, are actively at work for the Republican candidate. State bodies which have endorsed Governor Smith include the New York Federation of Labor.

Four year ago the national federation departed from its traditional non-partisan attitude by endorsing the independent candidacy of Senator Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin, who received a substantial popular vote in many labor centers. This year, however, so far as official word from the union headquarters goes, the majority of union men must act on their own judgment, helped of course by informal advice from headquarters as to the attitude of candidates towards things closest to their hearts.

STATE TEACHERS ASSOCIATION TO MEET THIS MONTH

Dates for Divisional Meetings Announced by the Officers

Six division meetings of the Illinois State Teachers Association will be held this week, one later this month, and two in November. The names of these divisions, the time and place of meeting, and the number of members expected to enroll are as follows:

Southeastern Division, Oct. 11-12, Fairfield, 900.

Eastern Division, Oct. 12, Charleston, 1800.

East Central Division, Oct. 12, Urbana, 2200.

Western Division, Oct. 1-12, Galesburg, 1800.

Illinois Valley Division, Oct. 11-12, Princeton, 1600.

Blackhawk Division, Oct. 12, Rock Island, 1300.

Northwestern Division, Oct. 26, Rockford, 2200.

Northeastern Division, Nov. 2, Joliet, 2000.

Chicago Division, Some time in November, Chicago, 7500.

The total enrollment of these nine fall meetings will be about 21,000 members. Since the five divisions that met last Spring at Carbondale, East St. Louis, Springfield, Peoria, and Waukegan enrolled over 13,000 members, the total membership of the State Teachers Association for this year will be about 34,000.

The division meetings will be devoted largely to lectures and discussions for the inspiration, information and professional improvement of teachers. The best speakers and instructors obtainable have been employed, and the programs have been carefully prepared by the division officers. Part of the time will be devoted to a discussion of the educational and finance problems of the State; resolutions will be adopted and recommendations made.

The 75th Annual State Meeting will be held in Springfield on Dec. 27, 28 and 29. The attendance there will consist chiefly of delegates from the fourteen divisions chosen in proportion to their respective numbers of members. A part of the program will consist of the business of this large and active state organization. A legislative program will be planned for presentation to the 56th General Assembly by the next month. Some of the items on this program will probably be a minimum school term of eight months, higher qualifications for beginning teachers, means for encouraging larger school districts, a larger state distributive fund, more liberal support for the state teacher training institutions, and some means of equalizing tax assessments so as to prevent such chaos in tax affairs as now exists in Cook county.

It is generally agreed by those who have observed its work that the State Teachers Association is one of the most potent and helpful factors in educational progress in Illinois.

QUOTAS OF LEE CO. TOWNS FOR SCOUTS' WORK

Annual Drive Will be Conducted Here Two Days, October 22-23

Is scout training of any practical value? Read what the great Judge Lindsay of the juvenile court has to say about his big question. "Courts and jails will never do away with the gangs of lawless youths that infest cities. It is absolutely futile for any community to stand the terrific expense of police departments, prisons, criminal courts, or even juvenile courts, if it does not at the same time wholeheartedly support every effort to conserve and prevent."

The Boy Scout movement is our greatest hope, the greatest single activity in this country promising a solution, not only of the boy problem, but the girl problem, for the best protector of girls is the youth who lives up to the laws and ideals of the Boy Scouts.

Devoted, far-seeing men have given us this remedy, and it is the duty of every parent, teacher and citizen to support it. The youth of the land is anxious to join the Boy Scout movement, for there is fun in it, besides every kind of instruction and opportunities to serve.

After fifteen years of juvenile work I say without question that if you will give the Boy Scout movement the moral and financial support it rightfully demands, the juvenile court will soon no longer be needed.

(signed) Ben. B. Lindsey.

Let us not pause here to look into the many and varied activities of the Boy Scout program in detail. Everyone acquainted with Scouting is familiar in a general way with the training system. Let the above expressions evidence its value and effectiveness.

To make effective the work in Lee and Ogle counties the sum of $4587.00 is needed to carry on the work under the Blackhawk Area Council. The quotas for the Towns in the two Counties are as follows:

Dixon	$2000.00
Amboy	350.00
Paw Paw	150.00
Oregon	500.00
Mt. Morris	325.00
Byron	200.00
Stillman Valley	75.00
Rochelle	700.00
Monroe Center	37.00

The dates for the drive have been set for October 22 and 23. This money is to be spent in the following manner: Executive salary $3300. Office help, $1080; rent, heat, light, $270; office supplies $200; postage $240; drayage $75; publicity $200; camp $500; conference and training $300; field days and rallies $100; national quota $250; badges $100; transportation $1200. The above budget includes the money coming from Whiteside County and Polo and East Jordan and Forreston.

The work for the coming year has been laid out in a very business-like way with the new Field Executive Gustav Albrecht spending one day in the big centers. This will greatly facilitate the service in the field.

Are you going to help Scouting by giving your share when the committee comes around. The success of Scouting in your community depends upon you.

Indian Princess Greets Curtis

A STUDY OF DIABETES MELLITUS

Patients suffering from this insidious disease have enormous appetites and thirst, a progressive loss of weight and strength, and a gradual emaciation. They will notice that sores and bruises resist healing. As the disease progresses, there is a faulty metabolism of sugar which appears in excessive quantities in the blood and urine, giving a peculiar ether-like sweetish odor to the breath and to the urine.

As the disease progresses, the patient may have to void several times the normal quantity of urine which constantly maintains a large amount of sugar. There is a mild form where the withdrawal of carbohydrates causes a disappearance of the sugar, but in the severe type even complete fasting causes no appreciable change. Apparently, the tissues of the body break down to furnish the sugar which is discharged.

Diabetes, contrary to popular belief, is not necessarily a disease of the kidneys. In fact it seems possible that the kidneys in many cases actually save the life of the sufferer by removing the excessive quantities of sugar that are present in the blood.

Diabetes is supposed to be caused by a disease of the pancreas that interferes with the manufacture of the pancreatic secretion which influences the action of the liver upon sugar. However, there may be other causes which will produce symptoms similar to this disease, as emaciation of the nervous system, or an injury to the medulla of the spinal cord which may so weaken the kidneys that they are unable to retain the normal amount of sugar in the blood but allow it to escape.

The pancreatic cells produce an internal secretion which prevents the liver from changing the insoluble animal starch which is stored in the tissues into soluble glucose. Another disorder similar to diabetes is produced by hardening of the liver. A fourth form seems to be produced by a clogging of the tissues, by some colloid or glue-like material, which prevents the free passage of sugar from the blood to the cells of the body, and a passage of carbondioxide from the cells to the blood. This last theory is supported by the fact that in diabetes the blood is less alkaline than normal, and it retains an excess of solid material. It is deficient in sodium, calcium, silicon and iron.

Diabetes is usually more serious in children than adults, and is twice as common with males as females. The majority of cases occur between the ages of thirty and sixty, but one may have a considerable amount of sugar showing in the urine, and still live for a good many years without any kind of treatment.

It is a well known fact that operations are dangerous to diabetics because of the danger of gangrene. The inability of wounds to heal and gangrene are both indicative of a blood overcharged with waste products.

Aged Man Committed Suicide in Furnace

Lincoln, Ill., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Based on a note left by the dead man a verdict of suicide was returned here late yesterday by a coroner's jury investigating the death of C. D. Lambert, 70-year old Elkhart grade school janitor, whose body was found yesterday in the school furnace.

The jury decided that blood stains found about the furnace room were left by the dead man who, it was believed, cut his hand in breaking a window to the basement through which he gained entrance.

After saturating cobs in the furnace with kerosene, the jury deduced, Lambert crawled into the furnace bowl and set fire to them, dying of suffocation. His body was badly burned. Attempt was made to examine bloody fingerprints on the furnace door but nothing could be determined from them. Lambert was formerly mayor of Elkhart.

A Rich Man's Darling or a Poor Man's Slave?

PEOPLE marvelled at Anna. Reared in back of her father's saloon, among rough men, it did not seem possible that such alluring loveliness could flower in such an environment.

How Anna loathed her surroundings! If some one would only take her out of all this, and give her true love and respect, wholesome surroundings, a chance for happiness!

Then wealthy Carl Morton, struck by her beauty, offered to "adopt" her. She would have a lovely home, beautiful clothes—everything. Stunned, it seemed to Anna that all her dreams had come true. But slowly she came to realize what this "adoption" meant. She was being "bought," body and soul.

Yet what could she do? Her father had "arranged" for her "adoption." He was grimly determined. There was only one way out. That night she boarded a train for the city.

Then came Frank Weston, Frank, too, was poor, but he loved her—wanted to marry her. Anna idolized him—and yet, her heart quailed. Life with Frank meant honorable marriage, true love. But it also meant more poverty, more sacrifice.

Could she do it? Would such a marriage really bring happiness? Were honest love and her own honor worth the continued sacrifice? She could still turn back—to Carl Morton—to ease and luxury. Would it not be better to be a rich man's darling than a poor man's slave?

What did Anna do? You will want to read this profoundly moving story. It is entitled "Is There Any Escape?" and appears complete in November True Story Magazine.

EDITOR'S NOTE—The story of the Lincoln-Douglas debates, which crystallized the nation's feeling in 1860, and of the nomination of Douglas by the Democrats, is told in this chapter of "The Presidential Parade" series.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer
(Copyright, 1928, NEA Service, Inc.)
Washington, Oct. 9.—The presidential campaign of 1860 saw the Democratic party broken into two parts, opening the way for the election of Abraham Lincoln and the Civil War.

During the four years following Buchanan's victory over Fremont the party was drifting toward the irrepressible conflict and the politicians were pulled with the tide.

Dred Scott Decision
The Democrats controlled the federal government from the supreme court down, as was proved when the Dred Scott decision granted the slave power everything it wanted. Five members of the court were southern Democrats and the north refused to accept the decision. It was charged that the court had "followed the election returns."

Lincoln attacked the decision in public speech and the northern senators, on Chief Justice Roger Taney's subsequent death, blocked the party which would have put his bust in the supreme court room as had been done for all chief justices before him. Jefferson Davis was at this time leading the south's hope-

Lincoln attacked the decision in public speech and the northern senators, on Chief Justice Roger Taney's subsequent death, blocked the party which would have put his bust in the supreme court room as had been done for all chief justices before him. Jefferson Davis was at this time leading the south's hope-

hope to cope with "The Little Giant."

Lincoln began the campaign with his great speech in which he said: "A house divided against itself cannot stand. This nation cannot be half slave and half free." Douglas attacked him as an "enemy of the Union."

The whole nation looked on as the two statesmen began their series of seven great debates. Lincoln's advantage was that Douglas, hoping for the nomination of a party hopelessly divided on slavery, must straddle the issue.

He raked Douglas with embarrassing questions and remarked to his friends: "He can't answer that and be both senator and president."

Regardless of who won the debates, Douglas won the election, but wrecked himself in the south to do it. Through the Buchanan administration's opposition Douglas was barely able to carry the state legislature, though defeated in the popular vote.

Debates Split Party
Those debates split the Democratic party into its north and south factions. Other incidents, such as the John Brown raid, were stirring the people.

Delegates to the Democratic convention assembled at Charleston, S. C., on April 23, Douglas, the schemer, led those from the north. The northern delegates demanded the nomination of Douglas and a platform on which they could win in their home states. The south demanded a platform recognizing the rights of the slaveholders, which would have been poison to the party in the north.

Delegates from Louisiana, Alabama, South Carolina, Mississippi, Florida, Texas and Arkansas bolted the convention. Georgia delegates went the next day. This meant a loss of 45 votes out of 303, but the convention nevertheless voted that the two-thirds rule required 202 votes for a nomination.

In three days, the convention took 57 ballots, but Douglas never came within 50 votes of the required 202. On the last ballot he had 151 to the second man's 65.

On the tenth day of its session the convention adjourned to Baltimore to try all over again. The bolters, meanwhile, had met in another Charleston hall and adopted pro-slavery resolutions as its platform. They nominated John C. Breckinridge and Joseph Lane.

The Steam Roller
Reassembling at Baltimore six weeks later, the regular convention was ruled by a Douglas steam roller. Some of the seceders were back and there were new delegates. A second bolt followed, led by Virginia delegates, and with about 190 delegates voting, Douglas was nominated almost unanimously by waiving the strict two-thirds interpretation, with Benjamin Fitzpatrick of Alabama for second place.

Thus the two wings of the party entered a hopeless campaign. One more ticket was entered prior to the Republican convention, that of the Constitutional Union party, which nominated John Bell of Tennessee and Edward Everett of Massachusetts.

This party was designed to save the Union, but even here, with delegates from nearly every state, the north-south struggle broke out when northern delegates refused to take Sam Houston, the southern choice, for the party candidate. The platform called for support of the Constitution and the Union, and for peace and tranquility. Bell, the candidate, was a pro-slavery anti-Democrat.

That the life blood of the average business enterprise is advertising.

That there are many business concerns thriving today which owe their success to publicity.

That there are few forward looking business men who do not believe in advertising and still fewer who may be unwilling to give the newspaper full credit.

That some business enterprises can exist in a way without publicity, but they cannot make progress—cannot keep pace with the trend of the times—and they must eventually admit that they are losing ground.

That this is an age of advertising and the newspaper offers one of the cheapest, most direct and most effective mediums of reaching the purchasing public.

Attended Meetings of S. S. Association

A meeting of unusual interest to this vicinity, because attended by a representative of this county, General Missionary James E. Wood of Freeport, who covers fourteen counties in Northwestern Illinois, was the Lakes District Conference of the American Sunday School Union which met in Rockford, Sept. 28 to October 3, inclusive. Each of the missionaries—seven from Illinois, six from Wisconsin and one from Northern Michigan, read a paper and participated in the discussions. Each was assigned to a different Rockford church on Sunday, Sept. 30, to tell about the one hundred and eleven year old society they represent, which organizes, equips and maintains Union Sunday Schools where no other religious work is being done. Dr. G. P. Williams, Secretary of Missions, and Dr. James McConaughy, Editor of Publications, were there from the home office, 1816 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa., and conducted round table talks following their addresses. Similar conferences are being held in the twelve other districts this year, and the Philadelphia leaders are attending each, thus getting in touch with the missionaries all over the United States. Prominent business and professional men are on the board of managers and serve as district vice presidents. Dr. W. W. Johnstone of Chicago is the Lakes District Superintendent.

PACIFISTS WILL CARRY FIGHT TO HIGHEST COURTS

Seek to Force U. S. to Grant Citizenship to
One of Them

Chicago, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Whether pacifists may become naturalized citizens of United States may be definitely decided by the U. S. Supreme court, in ruling on the Chicago case of Madame Rosika Schwimmer, internationally known Hungarian writer and lecturer, denied citizenship here by Federal Judge Carpenter, because she believed war is wrong.

Possibility of this nation wide out-growth of the Schwimmer case, was outlined here today by Mrs. Olive H. Rabe, Chicago, personal counsel for Mrs. Schwimmer. The attorney general of the United States, she said, has filed a petition in the Supreme court of the United States for a writ of Certiorari, in order that the highest court may pass on the question. Judge Carpenter's denial of citizenship to Mrs. Schwimmer was reversed by the U. S. Court of Appeals. From this reversal the Attorney General has carried the case to Washington.

"The question involved," Mrs. Rabe said, "is whether an applicant who believes that war is wrong and who would not kill a human being in defense of this country or in self-defense is able to take the Oath of Allegiance to support and defend the Constitution and laws of the United States against all enemies." Further whether during the probationary five-year period preceding the final petition for citizenship such an applicant has behaved as a person "attached to the principles of the Constitution of the United States."

"If the Supreme Court issues the writ of Certiorari and decides the question, the case will be a precedent that judges in all districts will be obliged to follow on this question, in the case of all pacifists, unless the Supreme court should decide the case on the narrower ground that the question of military defense is not a proper one in connection with the application of a woman."

"Mrs. Schwimmer is bewildered by the idea that this country should deny her citizenship because of her pacifist principles, in view of the fact that the Kellogg treaties have just heralded to the world that the United States believes in the supreme pacifist principle of solving international differences by reasoning instead of fighting."

"The legal point relied upon in my brief is the fact that under the Constitution the power is given to Congress to prescribe uniform rules of naturalization, and Congress has not made willingness to bear arms a necessary qualification. According to this argument, if the courts are permitted to construe the Oath of Allegiance as necessitating physical defense of the country or attachment to the principles of the Constitution as requiring physical defense, it will be possible in subsequent cases for the court to require other additional qualifications under the broad language of the Naturalization Act referred to. This would mean, according to the argument, that judges in the State courts as well as in all the districts of the Federal courts would in effect be prescribing the qualifications for naturalization instead of Congress. Such a condition of affairs the argument runs, would destroy any possibility of uniformity in naturalization and qualifications, although the Constitution requires such uniformity.

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

BY EDSON R. WAITE

During a recent visit to Denver, I interviewed Martin E. Rowley, Secretary of the Hotel Greeters of America, as to the value of newspaper advertising in building business for hotels, and Mr. Rowley said:

"In my opinion, the most efficient method of advertising and one from which the most tangible results can be traced is the newspapers. Newspapers are read faithfully by the majority of our population and I know from experience that they do read the ads."

"The problem of advertising probably presents more perplexing angles than any question that comes before the manager of a hotel or other business for decision, and most of the mediums presented are of practically no value whatsoever, fully 90% being worthless."

"I could enumerate scores of every day propositions which are brought to the attention of business men as advertising mediums but which possess no merit to recommend them and the cost is always much more than an ad in their town newspaper. Of course, some of these propositions must be patronized on account of the good will of prominent citizens or perchance, a club or lodge; but their advertising value is generally nil."

"THEREFORE, WHEN YOU WANT TO GET SOMETHING BEFORE THE PUBLIC, PLACE IT IN THE NEWSPAPER AND YOU WILL BE SURE OF A RETURN ON YOUR INVESTMENT, AS A GOOD AD IS ALWAYS AN INVESTMENT, NOT AN EXPENSE."

EXTINCTION OF TYPHOID COMING SAYS RAWLINGS

Prediction It's Elimination
Made by State
Health Director

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Practical extinction of typhoid fever within the next decade was predicted in a statement by State Health Director Isaac D. Rawlings, based on recent statistics of the state health department.

"Another decade of progress similar to the one about to close will find this infection as rare as leprosy and berri-berri in the state," he said. "Current statistical returns show typhoid prevalence lagging 27 per cent behind that of last year while field inspections by sanitary engineers of the state numbered 1675 for the fiscal year recently closed compared with 350 per annum for the last of the decade ended with 1920."

"The first nine months of 1923 brought only 675 cases of typhoid fever for the entire state," Dr. Rawlings said, "and unless we experience a post graduate epidemic we shall finish the year with less than 1000 cases all told. Last year, carrying the low annual record up to that time, there were 927 cases for the corresponding period and 1278 for the final figure. As late as 1910 there were more than one thousand deaths in a single year while at the opening of the twentieth century 2000 fatalities and 20,000 cases per annum were accepted as the usual course of events in Illinois."

"Cleaning up water and milk supplies on a big scale has done the trick. Water was the greatest carrier of typhoid from sick to well until municipalities installed sanitary public supplies and forced private wells and outhouses to be abandoned. "Then milk was recognized as an important means of travel for the typhoid germ. Pasteurization settles matters with it there, however, and now with about 75 per cent of the market milk in the state being pasteurized a great means of spreading typhoid as well as other infections has been eliminated."

Orphans Must Not be Denied Schools

Springfield, Ill.—(AP)—Orphaned children may not be denied the right to enter the school in the district in which they happen to reside, Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom has ruled.

His ruling was on a question brought to his attention by Francis G. Blair, state superintendent of public instruction. Mr. Blair sent the attorney general a letter from C. V. Williams, superintendent of the Illinois Childrens Home and Aid Society, in which it was stated that several children cared for by the society had been refused admittance to schools on the ground that they were not legal residents of the school district.

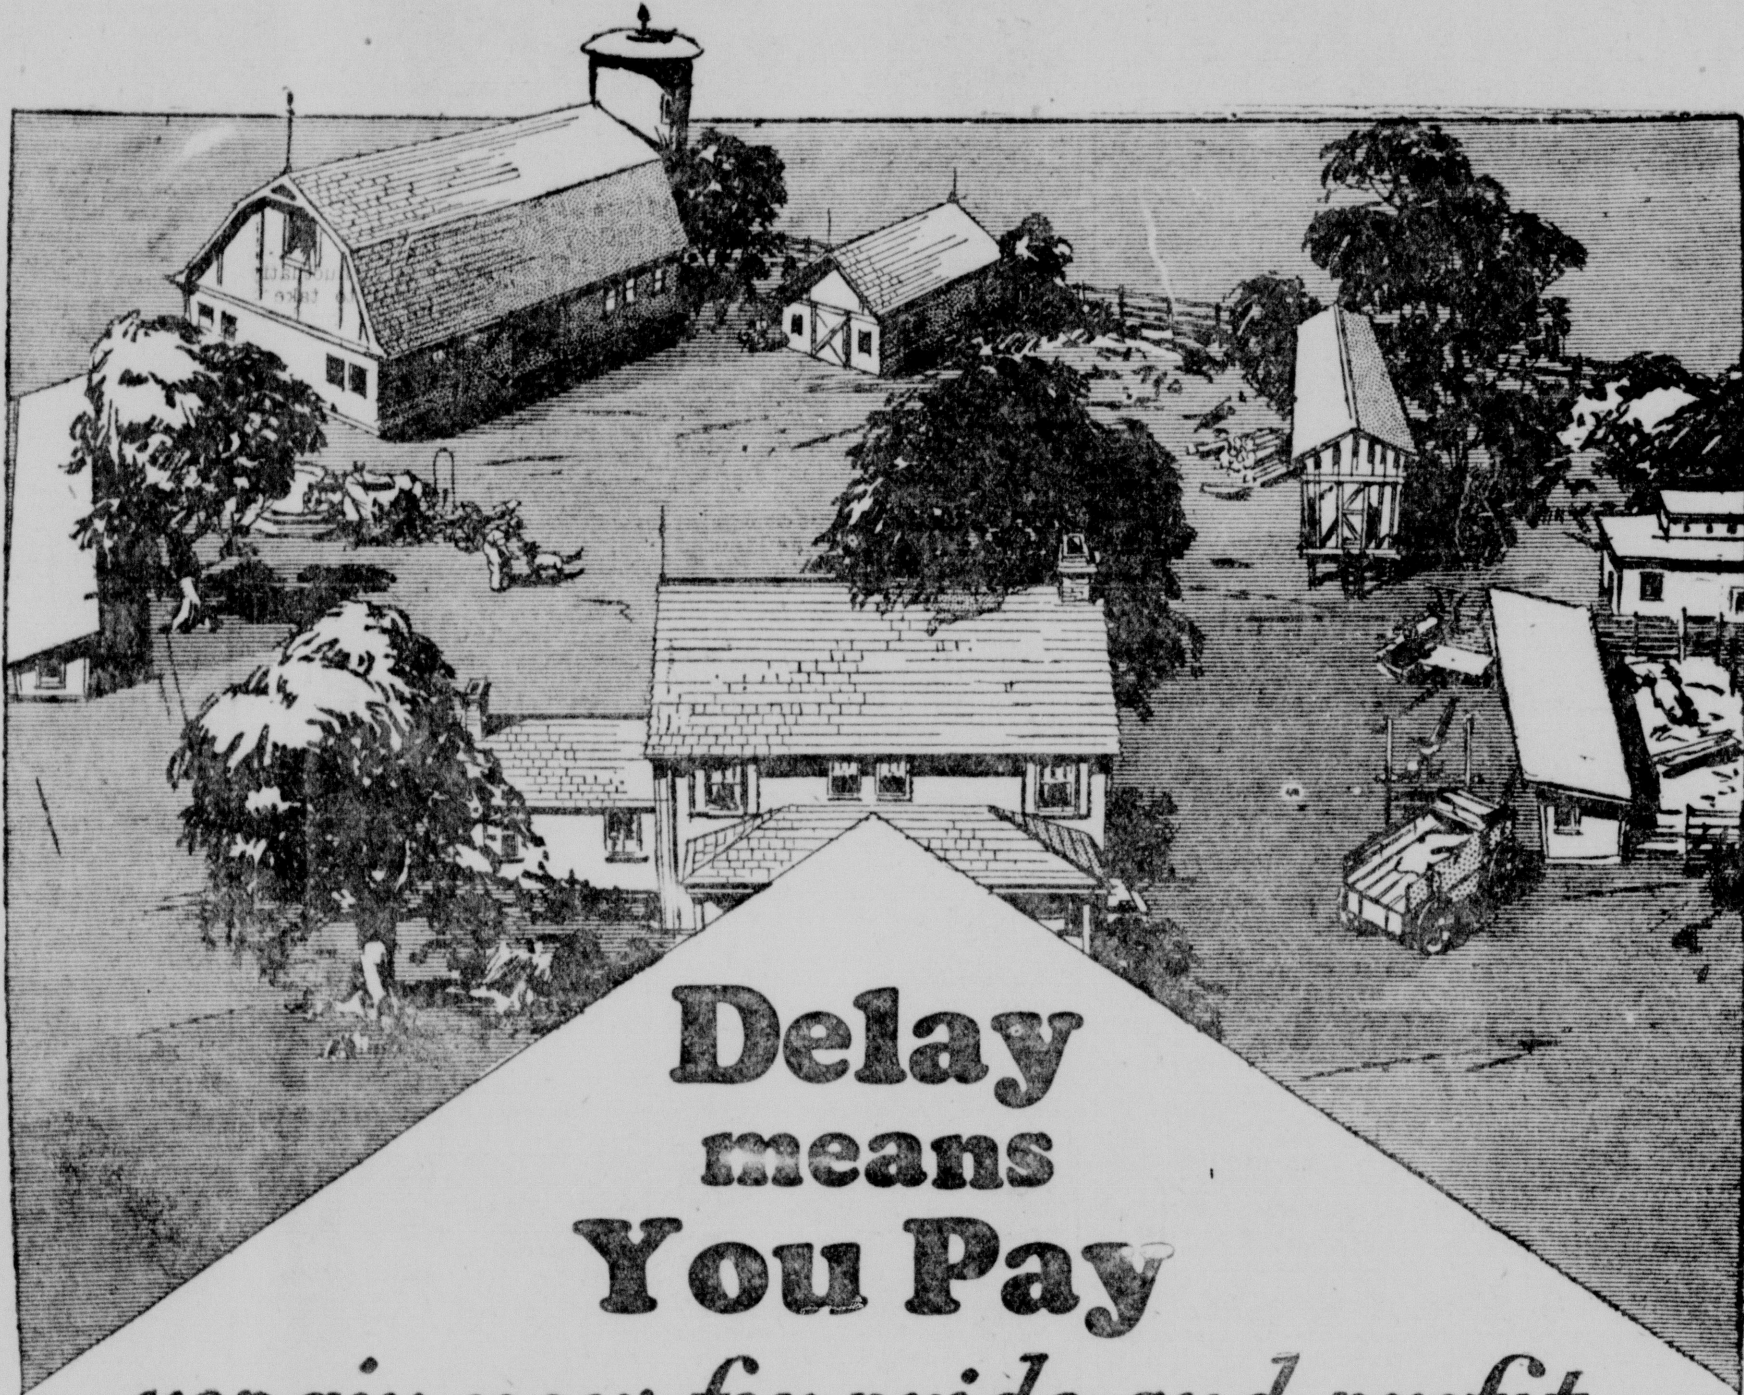

This society, Mr. Williams explained, is caring for more than eighteen hundred children, of whom more than eleven hundred are in private homes, reared as members of the household, but not legally adopted into the homes. Among these children, he said, occurred the refusals of schooling, on the ground that they were not legally residents.

Quoting a Supreme court decision, Carlstrom said in part: "Every child of school age in this state is entitled to attend the public schools in the district in which he actually resides for the time being, whether that be his legal place for his residence or not."

"The school districts have no authority to deny the right of admission of such pupils."

AGRICULTURE IN CHAOS IF SMITH WINS—JARDINE

Secretary of Agriculture
Tells What to Look For

If Governor Smith is elected and tariff rates are reduced to the schedules of the Underwood Act, as the Governor forecast in his acceptance speech, the entire farm industry will be thrown into a state of utter demoralization, W. M. Jardine, secretary of agriculture, said upon his return to Washington from a Western trip which carried him into Alaska.

Farm conditions have made distinct improvement during the last seven and one half years of Republican administration, Mr. Jardine said. For the farmers now to repudiate those policies, he declared, means another downward revision of the tariff and another struggle out of the conditions of ruin which engulfed agriculture after the war.

"Governor Smith has gone into the West to make a deliberate attempt to win the votes of the farm population," Mr. Jardine said. "What has he to offer these people? Merely the Underwood Tariff—the same Underwood tariff that pitched the agricultural industry headlong into collapse. Let no one be deceived. He represented the traditional stronghold of free trade. This tradition has not been changed as proved by the fact that he held up the Underwood Tariff as a model in his acceptance speech. If the governor were not an advocate of the low tariff, it would have been wholly impossible for the Democrats to nominate him at Houston.

"In his speech accepting the Democratic nomination for the Presidency, Mr. Smith spoke of the Underwood Act as a measure embodying all that is best in tariff principles. A few months before, in an authorized interview in The Industrial Review, Mr. Smith described the Republican tariff as a 'cold-blooded holdup of the American people in the interests of a few that were or are, only too well represented at Washington.'

"Necessary items by the hundreds," the Governor continued, "are unnecessarily taxed by the tariff. Clothing, beef, sugar, vegetables, buttons and chinaware and even fish are among the important staples taxed at the expense of every individual and family in the United States."

"The provisions of the Underwood Act are painful memories to the great mass of American farmers. Wheat was on the free list. Today the tariff is forty-two cents a bushel and it should go higher to keep out wheat that competes with hard winter wheat in this country. The Democratic free list also included such farm products as corn and corn meal, eggs, fruit and berries, hides, meats, milk and cream, nuts, oil cake, potatoes, rye and rye flour, sage, soy beans, swine and sheep, wool and wool wastes. All these products are now granted protection under the Republican tariff and our farmers are making a substantial improvement. Leading agricultural representatives have recommended, and I concur, that higher duties are needed on some products.

There can be no doubt that the farmers were saved from complete and final ruin during the period in which the Underwood tariff was operative only by a hasty revision of some of the schedules and mainly by the World War."

Mr. Jardine cited the struggle of the sugar beet industry as an example of the difficulties which a low tariff imposes on farmers.

"The prosperity of our sugar beet industry is of vital importance to large numbers of farmers in more than one third of our states," Mr. Jardine declared. "Beets form an important unit of the agricultural Wyoming, Colorado, Kansas, South Dakota, North Dakota, Wisconsin, Indiana, Washington, Utah, Montana, New Mexico, Nebraska, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota and Ohio. The industry utilizes 800,000 acres of farm land, produces an annual crop valued at $120,000,000, distributes from $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 annually to farmers, pays in salaries and wages more than $20,000,000 and a like amount to railroads, and provides a cash crop for 100,000 farm families whose members number perhaps 400,000.

"The sugar beet industry is one which deserves every encouragement and every assistance from the government. Beet culture is adapted to the conditions which prevail in many of our farming states. Moreover, the domestic sugar, under the protection granted by the Republican tariff, acts as a control on the price which the consumer pays for the product. If it were not for the domestic sugar and the tariff, Cuban and Porto Rican sugar would flood our markets and there would be no method of controlling the price. The present price, I think every one will agree, is fair.

"What happened to sugar during the Democratic administration under the Underwood tariff? During the campaign of 1912, the Democrats under the leadership of Woodrow Wilson declared, as they did in their platform at Houston this year, that no drastic action would be taken in modifying the tariff act and that nothing would be done to disturb business. The farmers were made to understand that their products would be adequately protected against the impact of foreign competition from the products of foreign countries produced under conditions of low wages and standards of living prevailing in those countries.

"Mr. Wilson was elected President and the Democrats obtained control of both Houses of Congress. One of the first acts of that congress was the passage of the Underwood tariff bill. Contrary to their campaign pledges, the Democrats proceeded to put on the free list all those farm products I have mentioned. The duty on sugar was reduced twenty-five per cent, and it was further provided that on May 1, 1916, sugar automatically should go on the free list.

"Upon the passage of the Underwood bill, 17 of the 78 sugar beet factories then operating were forced to shut down, and from that time until the outbreak of the World War the domestic beet sugar industry was absolutely demoralized.

"The outbreak of the war, however, which bottled up millions of tons of sugar in continental Europe, forced up the world price of sugar to such an extent that it nullified the effect of the tariff reduction on sugar provided in the Underwood bill. But the domestic beet sugar industry still had to face the fact that the bill placed sugar automatically on the free list on May 1, 1916. However, the Democratic tariff bill and the exigencies of war had so reduced our customs revenues that the Government expenditures were exceeding the revenue by millions of dollars a month and so, in order not to incur a further loss of some $75,000,000 from sugar, the Democratic congress was compelled to repeal the free sugar clause just before it became effective and instituted war revenue measures. Thus the sugar beet industry was saved from annihilation. Had the Democratic congress not been forced, under the existing emergency, to repeal the free sugar clause of the Underwood bill, the domestic beet sugar industry today would be merely a matter of history.

"The American farmers, including the hundreds of thousands of beet sugar growers, have not forgotten that the Underwood Tariff bill, which Governor Smith supports, placed nearly all their articles on the free list. They will not be deceived by high-sounding phrases when they remember that Governor Smith publicly stated that, if he is elected and the Democrats gain control of Congress, a tariff bill similar to the Underwood tariff would be enacted.

"If Governor Smith is elected and carries with him a Democratic congress and the present tariff on sugar is abolished, or even lowered to any extent, the domestic beet sugar industry will be annihilated, the $250,000,000 now invested in beet sugar factories will be wiped out, thousands of Americans employed in the 100-odd beet sugar factories will be idle, and 800,000 acres of land now devoted to beet culture will be thrown into other crops with which the market is surfeited. The same land which is adapted to the growth of sugar beets is well adapted to potatoes, or wheat, but the farmer who attempts to save himself by growing those crops—provided the sugar industry is broken down by an adverse tariff—will find himself competing in a market already glutted. Indeed, additional surplus of already surplus crops would harm agriculture in every section of this country.

"The Republican Party stands pledged to aid the American farmer and to increase the duties on farm products wherever necessary. It renews its pledge to protect the American beet sugar grower from competition with sugar produced in tropical countries under conditions which are far below the American standards of living. It proposes that farmers be given the same equal treatment that is extended to men engaged in any other great industry. Its solicitude for agriculture is traditional, not an over-night attempt to gain political favor."

Valuable Hints for Farmers and Their Good Wives

Before the weather grows cold, all live stock, including poultry, should be inspected carefully for evidence of external parasites, such as lice, ticks, mange, mites, and scab. In case parasites are found, the stock should be dipped while the weather permits dipping without danger of colds and pneumonia.

Milk which has a bitter flavor from bitterness need not necessarily be thrown away. Salable butter and cottage cheese often can be made from bitter milk provided care is taken to wash them thoroughly.

The "all-mash method" of feeding poultry, which has come into use recently, can be practiced successfully. One of the advantages of this method—which consists of supplying the entire ration in ground form kept constantly before the birds—is that every fowl is sure to get a balanced ration instead of varying proportions of scratch feed and mash.

Farmers should not be misled about common scab of sheep. The cause of serious financial loss. It spreads rapidly and is easily introduced from "strays" or through "public buck herds." It does not develop rapidly in hot weather, and owners are likely to believe the mites causing it have left the flock. However, close examination will reveal the mites working at the edges of the scabs. Dipping with the lime-and-sulphur or the nicotine solutions will cure the flocks, but the dipping should be repeated in from 10 to 12 days. The same treatment will cure foot scab.

Light, friable, or sandy soils planted to corn, that react quickly to atmospheric changes, should be plowed in the fall or winter if the corn earworm is present, especially in the southern half of the country. Frequent changes of temperature are destructive to the pupae of this pest, the losses from which amount to many millions of dollars annually.

Food for bees during winter months requires close attention. Winter colony should have from 25 to 40 pounds of honey. If feeding is practiced, sirup made of granulated sugar is as good as honey and is safe. In no wise should honey be purchased on the open market for bee feeding. Great care should be taken that honey for bees be obtained from a healthy apiary, lest the entire colony be ruined by disease.

In harvesting late crop cabbage the usual procedure is to cut and trim the heads at one operation. Loading and shipping, whether in containers or in bulk, requires care to prevent bruising. The attractiveness of a neatly trimmed, carefully graded lot of cabbage more than pays for the extra time and attention necessary to its preparation.

The Farm Week in Washington

BY FRANK I. WELLER
(Associated Press Farm Editor)
Washington—(AP)—The government's first report on the grade, staple, and tenderness of cotton, made by authority of the seventeenth congress, puts into cold figures a series of situations important to the industry.

It shows that more than 10 per cent of the cotton ginned prior to September 1 was of 13-16 inch staple and under, a length undesirable on the future market. In other words, of the 956,486 bales ginned, 98,978 bales likely will be worth less than it cost to produce it.

But the significance is greater. As the ginning season advances, according to the report, the amount of 13-16 inch cotton increases in relation to the rest of the crop. The 1923 crop is forecast to total 14 and a half million bales. If the percentage of 13-16 inch cotton increased as past records show, even held its present figure, there would be one and a half million bales undesirable because the staple length is too short.

Seven-eighths cotton, the shortest staple tenderable, comprised almost 38 per cent, or 356,437 bales of the amount covered by the report. If that percentage held through the season, there would be about six million bales of 1/8-inch cotton, or three and one-half million bales more than the mills ordinarily consume.

Only about 17 per cent of the cotton ginned prior to September 1 was of the 1 to 1-32 inch staple length, a cotton highly desired by spinners. The bulk of cotton used by spinners throughout the world is of 15-16 inch staple, but this length comprises only 29.03 per cent of the 956,486 bales reported.

The desirability of producing a staple more generally demanded by spinners is seen by the fact that from July, 1927, to July, 1928, the price of untenderable 13-16 inch cotton was $2.50 a bale less than 3/8 cotton, and $3.75 a bale less than 16-16 cotton. The highly desirable 1-16 inch cotton averaged $8.75 a bale more than the 1/8 cotton and $11.25 more than that of 13-16 inch staple.

Almost 38 per cent of the cotton reported was strict middling white, the grade most in demand by spinners. Good middling white totaled 40.76 per cent. The grade of cotton had only to do with its cleanliness and color. The eight colors listed by federal standards cover 37 degrees of cleanliness, 15 of which are untenderable.

Federal cotton authorities believe these inventories of quality will dissipate the numerous rumors and opinions that heretofore have kept the market in a state of fluctuation. Consumers will be able to take up greater quantities of the grade and staple that predominate, the authorities believe, and by getting them off the market automatically increase the price of the same quality cotton left in the carryover. The effect would be to get grade and staple premiums adjusted to the supply, and production adjusted to consumption.

Weekly Review of Agriculture by Farmers Paper

Chicago—(AP)—Illinois' corn crop is in excellent condition throughout the corn belt counties of the state in spite of recent heavy frosts, Prairie Farmer's weekly agricultural review said today. Although the frost took the color out of the stalks and leaves, making them look dead, most of the ears were fully mature when the frost came, and the crop in general was not injured by the cold. Much of it is dry enough to crib and husking will begin in earnest in a short time.

To relieve the feed shortage caused by the lack of old corn farmers have begun feeding the new crop, and are turning hogs into fields which are to be hogged off.

County corn husking contests, to determine the huskers who will compete in the state contest to be held in Henry county the last week in October, will begin in a few days. Old records are expected to fall this year, because of the fine quality of the corn to be husked.

Southern Illinois reports a decrease in the winter wheat acreage which is being sown this fall. This is due partly to low prices for the 927 crop and to an acute shortage of good seed. A dry fall has made plowing hard, and many farmers are waiting with the sowing until rains come to moisten the soil.

The harvesting of the biggest crop of soybeans in the history of the state is getting under way. Christian county leads all others in the state in acreage. The beans are of fair to good quality, and farmers anticipate receiving a good price for them.

The cattle market showed a little weakness last week, but indications are that feeding operations will be

OLD-FASHIONED FARM HOUSE IS DISAPPEARING

Life on Farm Rapidly Becoming Modern in this Community

Springfield, Ill.—(AP)—The old-fashioned farm house, with its old oaken bucket and old horse and buggy, so dear to the hearts of the sons of writers, is fast disappearing in Illinois.

On eighty-five of every one hundred farms in Illinois, it is more up to date to ride to town in an automobile. To give exact figures, automobiles have replaced horse transportation on 193,936 Illinois farms, the total number of farms in Illinois being 225,597.

On a large number of these farms—more than 30,000—two automobiles are found. On an appreciable large number there are not only two automobiles, but a motor truck and a tractor besides.

Nights formerly spent before an open fire cracking nuts and yarns are now, more than likely, spent by the rural family in a furnace heated room before a radio, debating whether a political speaker or a jazz band shall be given the freedom of the air lines. The radio night is the rule in exactly half of all Illinois farms. The fireplace is a defunct institution on 57,808 rural homes—slightly more than 25 per cent of all farms.

These are a few of the facts brought out in the 1928 survey of farm equipment made by A. J. Suratt, U. S. agricultural statistician here, working in cooperation with representative farmers in every section of the state.

The survey is elaborate, covering every mechanical device used on a farm. In its preparation, Mr. Suratt consulted with the help of rural mail carriers and long questionnaires, farmers in every one of Illinois' 102 counties. The law of averages was carefully considered in making the final report. As an example, it was considered that farmers making answer to the questionnaires would represent farms better equipped than the average; and their answers were duly discounted.

For the purpose of all federal surveys, Illinois is divided into nine geographic areas, each taking in approximately 25,000 farms. Wide variance was found between districts, indicating the more prosperous farming regions.

The southeast division, for example, appeared the poorest in mechanical assets. This division comprises Jefferson, Wayne, Edwards and Wabash counties and all others south and east. Here only 69 farmers owned a car and 23 a radio out of every 100.

In the eastern district, on the other hand, there were 94 cars, and 62 radios for every 100 farms. This district includes the prosperous counties of Vermilion, Kankakee, Champaign, Ford, Iroquois and Livingston.

Forty-three items of farm equipment are listed in the survey. Among them are found: electricity on 16.4 per cent of all Illinois farms; modern heating plants on 25.6 per cent; modern plumbing systems on 11.5 per cent; only 13.8 per cent still cling to the antiquated walking plow; tractors are used on 36 per cent of all farms; and radios outnumber incubators by about five to four, the percentages being 50.9 for radios and 40.8 for the incubators.

The combine, newest contribution of inventive science to agriculture, as profitable this winter as they were last year.

Hog prices started on their seasonal decline a little earlier than usual. Top Chicago prices dropped $2.50 in 10 days.

numbers 500 in the state, being found on 2 per cent of all farms. As an index to the comparative use of equipment on the nine divisions, the following percentages are given, by districts:

Northwest district (Bureau, Carroll, Henry, JoDaviess, Lee, Mercer, Ogle, Putnam, Rock Island, Stephenson, Whiteside and Winnebago counties). Total farms, 26,770; number and percentage of farms having an automobile 24,630 or 92 per cent; electricity, 7,006 or 26.2 per cent; plumbing, 4218 or 15.8 per cent; modern heating, 12,602 or 47.1 per cent; tractors, 8,105, or 30.3 per cent; radio, 17,936 or 67 per cent.

Northeast: (Boone, Cook, DeKalb, DuPage, Grundy, Kane, Kendall, Lake, LaSalle, McHenry and Will counties). Total farms, 26,222; autos 24,436 or 93.2 per cent; electricity, 7,117 or 27.1 per cent; plumbing 2,898, or 14.2 per cent; modern heat, 11,273, or 43 per cent; tractors, 10,096, or 38.4 per cent; radio, 18,041 or 68.3 per cent.

West (Adams, Brown, Fulton, Hancock, Henderson, Knox, McDonough, Schuyler and Warren counties). Total farms, 20,444; cars, 17,842, or 87.3 per cent; electricity, 3,596, or 17.6 per cent; plumbing, 2,898, or 14.2 per cent; modern heat, 6,417, or 31.4 per cent; tractors, 5,804, or 28.8 per cent; radio, 12,103 or 59.2 per cent.

ADJUSTMENTS TO BE CONFERENCE THEME HERE SOON

Farm and Home Advisers of District to Convene in Dixon Oct. 24

Mattoon, Ill., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Under a plan launched here today, 1000 farm men and women within the next month will sit in conference, along with the state's county farm and home advisers, vocational agriculture and home economics teachers, staff of the college of agriculture, University of Illinois and other selected farm authorities, to consider what long-time adjustments can be made for the improvement of conditions in Illinois' agricultural industry representing a total property value of $4,600,000,000.

Seven similar regional agricultural conferences will follow the Mattoon meeting within the next month. Holding of the meetings is the most recent important development in a plan conceived and proposed by H. W. Mumford, dean and director of the Illinois agricultural college, for formulating definite agricultural programs for the eight farming-type areas of the state. Since its proposal early in this past June, the idea of regional agricultural adjustment conferences has been carried forward rapidly.

Deliberations at the conference here today were organized under the heads of ten committees, one each for field crops, meat animals, poultry, dairying, horticulture, farm organization and management; mechanical equipment, drainage and farm buildings; agricultural cooperation, community development and farm home development.

Nine counties are included in the farming-type area around Mattoon and one farmer or farm woman from each of these counties served on each of the committees. Counties represented were Christian, Crawford, Edgar, Clark, Cumberland, Moultrie, Coles, Douglas and Shelby.

In addition to the 90 farm men and women members, the ten committees of the Mattoon conference included the region's farm and home economics teachers, executive committeemen of the Illinois Agricultural Association, agricultural college staff members and members of the experiment station advisory committees.

The first conference held here today is one of the smallest on schedule. By the time the eight meetings covering the 102 counties of the state have been held, it is estimated that at least 1,000 farmers and farm women and half again as many agricultural authorities and specialists will have taken part in the adjustment conferences.

"Illinois' agricultural industry represents a property value of $4,600,000,000," Dean Mumford pointed out in the first conference here today. "Certainly if a corporation had control of interests reaching such proportions those interests would be subjected to frequent and intensive study by the best available scientific minds working in unison with the executive in charge. The fact that Illinois has a quarter million such executives—farmers—operating her farms instead of a single board is an added rather than a reduced reason why the best results of science should be understood by these executives in as comprehensive a way as possible and why these executives should impress upon scientists the needs of the situation as they view them."

Dates for the remaining adjustment conferences on the schedule are: Centralia, October 10; Bloomington, October 16; Aurora, October 17; Dixon, October 24; Galesburg, October 25; Jacksonville, October 31, and East St. Louis, November 1.

OFFICERS OGLE BUREAU ATTEND STATE MEETING

Reported Decatur Meeting to be One of Most Interest

Elmer Vietmeier, president of Ogle County Farm Bureau, and D. E. Warren, Farm Adviser, returning from the state meeting of Farm Bureau presidents, advisers, officers and staff of the Illinois Agricultural Association and heads of the Extension Service of the State College of Agriculture at Decatur, report the meeting as one of the best ever held for the discussion of accomplishments of the state organization and policies for its future service.

Mr. Vietmeier in commenting on the meeting said, "It is amazing to see how much is being done for Illinois farmers by the Farm Bureau. I wish that every farmer in Ogle county might be in direct touch with this great farm organization."

That the organization is purely one of service to agriculture and that it is accomplishing wonderful things in its endeavor to solve some of the greatest problems of the farmers of Illinois were outstanding facts shown in the reports of the several departments and in the whole hearted discussion of every subject by the entire group of more than 200 representatives of the state and county organizations.

Reports of the purposes and accomplishments of the I. A. A. were given by the Organization Department by Geo. E. Metzger, the Taxation Dept. by John C. Watson, the Transportation Dept. by L. J. Quasey, the Phosphate-Limestone Dept. by J. R. Bent, the Publicity Dept. by E. G. Thiem, the Auditing and Business Service by Geo. R. Wicker, the Automobile Insurance by V. Vaniman and A. E. Richardson, the Live Stock Marketing Dept. by Ray E. Miller, the Milk Marketing Dept. by A. D. Lynch, the Produce Marketing Dept. by F. A. Gougler, the Fruit and Vegetable Marketing Dept. by A. B. Leeper, the Grain Marketing Dept. by Harrison Farnkopf, the Service Company by Donald Kirkpatrick, the Farm Supply Co. by Geo. R. Wicker, the Reinsurance Co. by V. Vaniman, the Financial Business Service by Mr. Frazier, Office Administration by J. H. Kelker, the Relations with the University Extension Service by W. H. Smith and the proposed Life Insurance Company by Donald Kirkpatrick.

No time was given at this meeting to a discussion of party politics. No official statement has at any time been made by officers of the Association endorsing or recommending any party or any candidate. The policy of the Illinois Agricultural Association, it was announced, has been and will continue to be strictly non-partisan.

In a statement of policy on political issues previously adopted by the Executive Committee of the I. A. A. it was stated, "We recognize that agricultural issues are economic rather than political. We seek to furnish full, fair and impartial information on agricultural issues to our members and friends, also the records and commitments on these issues of political parties, men in office and those seeking positions of trust and responsibility. With this information in hand, farmers and all true friends of agriculture are in a position to support candidates for office who will best serve the economic interests of agriculture. We urge our members at all times to support those candidates, regardless of party, who by their records or definite commitments have proven their worthiness to this position."

NOT POPULAR IN GOLF

LOUD TALK isn't very popular on the tee or green, but there is no reason why it should be barred from letter golf. It makes a tricky par six and one solution is on page 11.

L	O	U	D
T	A	L	K

THE RULES
1—The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.
2—You can change only one letter at a time.
3—You must have a complete word of common usage, for each pump slang words and abbreviations don't count.
4—The order of letters cannot be changed.
One solution is printed on page 11.

A Cold Winter for Them

There are animals as well as human heroes of Antarctic exploration, and here are two of them—dog and cat mascots of the Byrd party. Dr. H. Barnes, one of the physicians, is holding Budy, the little wharf kitten that refused to be left behind. The terrier, Igloo, already is a hardened explorer, for he went on Commodore Byrd's North Pole Expedition.

Al Smith and Herbert Hoover

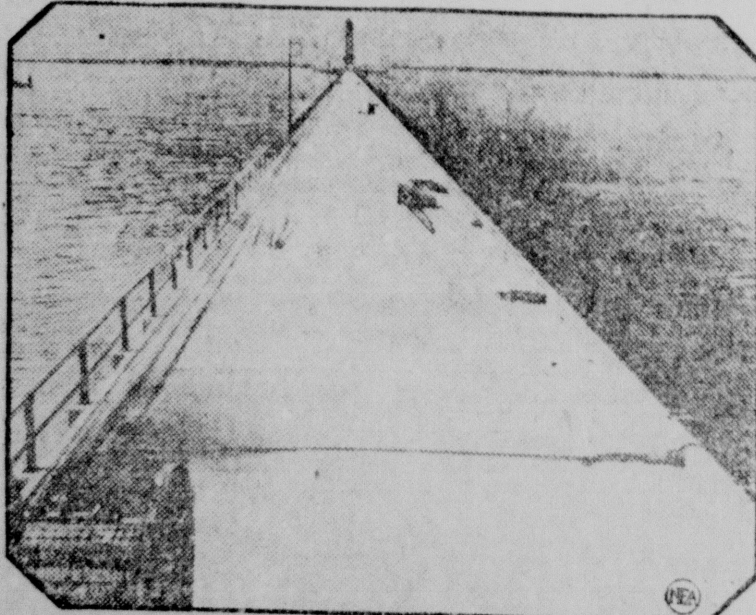

Al Smith and Herbert Hoover are having a little battle all their own down in Evansville, Ind. Here they are—two of the 400 babies entered in a baby show, conducted by the women of Mooseheart Legion. Al is on the left, Herbert, right. And don't they bear a remarkable resemblance to their name sakes?

Keepers of Illinois Kidnap Farm

When police brought three members of the Capellano family from Bourbonnais, Ill., to Chicago, they were identified by the abducted Billy Ranieri, 10, as the keepers of the "kidnap farm" at Bou 6 nrais where Billy was held while abductors tried to collect huge sums from his father, a Chicago contractor. Left to right they are Antoinette, her father, Andrew, and her father, Tony.

CHAMPIONS OF TWILIGHT LOOP ARE BANQUETED

I. N. U. Co. Hosts Last Evening to Company
Baseball Team

Members of the Illinois Northern Utilities Company baseball team, champions of the Twilight Industrial League for two successive seasons, were guests of honor at a banquet tendered by the employees of the company at the Brinton Memorial Masonic Temple last evening. The affair was very cleverly arranged and an interesting program was carried out. Robert Hallenberg, director of the department of public relations, officiated as toastmaster. Before and after the dinner, Miss Rae West presided at the piano and several specially adapted songs were sung.

Large photographs of the team were used as place cards at the table of honor. Physical Director C. M. Yohn of the Y. M. C. A. who organized and has directed very successfully the Twilight Industrial League, made a very nice talk on the success of the project and the fine feeling of sportsmanship displayed by all of the teams. L. G. Adams was called upon to express the gratitude of the I. N. U. employees to the members of the championship team. The remainder of the program was as follows:

Arnold Schultz, team manager—"How to 'Baby' a Team to Championship."

"I. N. U. Team—You're Right"—Song—led by Miss Marjorie Woods.

Arthur Nelson, 1st B—"Why Touch First When That's Where You Live."

Leslie Higgs, 2nd B—"My Conference with the Pitcher and Why."

Elliott Henry—3rd B—"How to Overcome Walking in One's Sleep."

"The More We Get Together"—Song—led by Miss Helen Nagle.

Willie Hargrave, ss—"How I Pick 'Em Out of Hand Threw 'Em Out."

Steve Skelton, c—"Why Reddish Finds Baseball So Funny."

C. J. Scott, rf—"How It Feels to Put the Last Game on Ice."

Vigil Reddish, p—"Why It Takes a Good Pitched 45 Minutes to Get Hot."

"Yes! ur Company Has a Team"—Song—led by R. Hallenberg.

Carroll Reilly, cf—"What I Did With the Ball on Aug. 8th."

Ole Prestegard, lf—"Why the Fans Are Always Looking at Me."

George Edwards, rf—"My Acrobatic Way of Reaching First."

"We Aim to Furnish the Very Best"—Song—led by Miss Milla Wahnke.

E. H. Walter, lf—"The Other 'Birds' on and off the Team."

SMITH PLANNING TO ANSWER TALK OF HIS OPPONENT

Will Start Journey to Dixie Today: Plans Several Short Talks

BY D. HAROLD OLIVER

(Associated Press Staff Writer)
Albany, N. Y., Oct. 9—(AP)—Primed for the second stage of his contest for the Presidency, Gov. Smith leaves Albany today for the first lap of a journey that will take him into the southern and southern border states. Only one speech—at Louisville, Ky., Saturday night—will be made this week, however, the other portion of the trip being set aside for train platform receptions and conferences with party leaders.

Virginia and North Carolina will get their first glimpse of the New York executive as Democratic presidential nominee on Thursday and Thursday night, while Tennessee will have him as the center of a big reception and rally on Friday.

Leaving here by regular train shortly after noon, Gov. Smith, accompanied by his wife and daughter, Mrs. John A. Warner, and a few advisers goes first to New York, arriving there around 4 o'clock. Tonight and tomorrow will be given over to callers from the Democratic National Committee for any reports they may wish to convey.

Itinerary Announced
The trip to Dixie will get under way tomorrow night at 11 o'clock, when the Governor, joined by his rary for the trip beyond that city.

Washington has been mentioned as one of the operating stops where a reception probably will be held in the train sheds and several cities in the "solid south" are understood to be on the lists for rear platform appearances.

But One Speech

Governor Smith will deliver but one speech during the week, that at Louisville, Ky., next Saturday night.

He has not disclosed what his text will be, but now that Herbert Hoover has made his formal bid for support in the south, some of the Governor's supporters here believe he will devote at least a part of his address in the blue grass state to a reply to his Republican opponent's remarks at Elizabethton, Tenn.

Tennessee will have plenty of opportunity to get its first glimpse of the New York state executive before he invades Kentucky. That border state will be his first destination after leaving New York, Chattanooga and Nashville being on the schedule for a full day of conferences Friday with prominent Democrats.
